

Franckiewicz and Bay council meet to discuss dockside gambling bills

BY TRACI BONNEY
What started out as an informational workshop Friday between Bay St. Louis city council members and Sen. Vic Franckiewicz turned into a 'public hearing' of sorts as dozens of dockside gambling proponents and opponents gathered at City Hall to ask questions and voice opinions. Councilman Jim Rutherford and Mayor Edward Favre were not present at the workshop meeting, which had been set up only two days earlier. Both had commitments which had been made several weeks in advance of the short-notice workshop. Rep. J.P. Compretta, also expected at the 4:30 p.m. workshop, arrived at 6:35 p.m. The attorney said late appointments with clients pushed him behind schedule. Council chairman Charles Scianna started to give a statement about House Bill 1597, which was the reason for the workshop, but was cut short by council members John Wilkerson and Tom Farve, who reminded Scianna the meeting was a workshop to discuss legislation with Franckiewicz, and not a public hearing. Scianna had been speaking about the tax brackets created ple of proposals. He prefaced his comments by explaining that the tax brackets set up by H.B. 1597 would give Bay St. Louis only $50 on the first $50,000 profit made by a gambling facility in a month, and only $200 on the first $185,000 profit in a month. Thriffley explained that he and the mayor had discussed in H.B. 1597, passed recently in the House and sent to the Senate, where it has not yet been taken up for consideration. Scianna asked if any council member wanted to make a statement before they addressed Franckiewicz. Wilkerson and Farve declined, but Jim Thriffley said he had a couthe small financial gains to be had by the city, gains Thriffley said are too small for the city to properly host a gaming facility or the people who would visit the city to patronize the facility. He said he and Favre had come up with a suggestion they wanted to give Franckiewicz, if the rest of the council approved. Thriffley suggested that the council ask the legislature for two local and private bills. One would charge a $2.50 per person boarding fee for dockside vessels, and the other would levy a $100 tax for each machine or gaming table on a gaming vessel. The revenues from these charges would go to the city.

Franckiewicz said he could introduce a local and private bill if the council will give solid support to a request for one. He explained that the council would need to pass a resolution which would contain the text of the bill, then send the resolution to Jackson.

He then recapped the history of the legalization of dockside gambling in Mississippi, and talked about H.B. 1597 and its role in helping or hindering funding of the State Gaming Commission. He said other Senate bills that would fund the gaming commission are still alive and

One killed, five injured in Bay bridge wreck

BY TRACI BONNEY
Five people were injured and one was killed in a two-car wreck that occurred Saturday at 11:45 a.m. two miles east of Bay St. Louis on the Bay bridge in heavy rains. A spokesperson for the Mississippi Highway Patrol said Kimberly M. Holloman, 32, of Pass Christian was killed in the wreck. Injured were Alfred A.

Holloman, 34, husband of the deceased, who sustained minor injuries; two-year-old Alex Holloman, who sustained head injuries; 10-year-old Neil Holloman and nine-year-old Shawn Smith, who suffered cuts and bruises; and Dorothea A. Sawyer, 74, of Pass Christian, who also suffered cuts and bruises. Mrs. Sawyer was driving the eastbound vehicle at the time of the accident. Emergency personnel from Mobile Medic, the Hancock County Sheriff's Department, the Bay St. Louis Police Department and the Mississippi Highway Patrol responded to the incident, along with Harrison County Medical Examiner Delores Little.

Government consolidation resolution passes Senate

BY TRACI BONNEY
An amended version of House Concurrent Resolution 71, which could lead to city-county government consolidations throughout the state, passed the Senate this week and is headed back to the House of Representatives, according to Sen. Vic Franckiewicz.

He said H.C.R. 71 is a constitutional amendment which would authorize the legislature to provide for city-county government consolidation, if the voters of a county so choose. If H.C.R. 71 is passed in both chambers of the legislature, it will go to the voters of Mississippi in November.

He explained that the Senate amendments to the resolution were changes to work out some technical problems.

Franckiewicz said the merging of city and county school districts is separate from city-county government consolidation because laws are already on the books that address school district consolidation.

Industrial park workers experience close call

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson reported that five men were involved in a minor accident Friday morning at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Peterson said the Hancock Sheriff's Department, Mobile Medic and the Waveland Fire Rescue team answered an emergency call for an industrial accident at Gulf Coast Fabrication at 9:45 a.m. Friday.

"Several workers were in a hole of the Delta Queen Paddle Wheeler," Peterson explained, "when a CO2 fire alarm system accidentally went off, removing all oxygen from the air and rendering the men overcome for a period of time."

Four men were treated at the scene by Mobile Medic and one man was transported to Hancock Medical Center and later released, he added.

Peterson said the investigation is being conducted by the company.

Supervisors accept first choice for county redistricting plan

BY TRACI BONNEY
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors voted 4-1 Friday to accept the first of two proposed redistricting plans for the county.

The plan, which received its only negative vote from District 3 Supervisor Lisa Coward, proposes to move 628 Diamondhead residents from District 3 into District 5, along with 420 residents of the Bayou LaTerre-Rocky Hill Road area.

District 5 Supervisor Mike Ladnier made the motion to accept the plan, saying he was doing it "in all fairness and equity" to everyone involved in the federally-mandated redistricting. Board president Ronald Cuevas commented of the plan voted for, "It seems to be the least difficult path to take."

After the meeting, Coward said she was very disappointed with the outcome of the redistricting. "I really thought they were going to accept the second alternate," she stated.

The second alternate would have left Diamondhead intact and moved more than 930 residents in the Bayou LaTerre-Rocky Hill Road-Dummyline Road area into District 5.

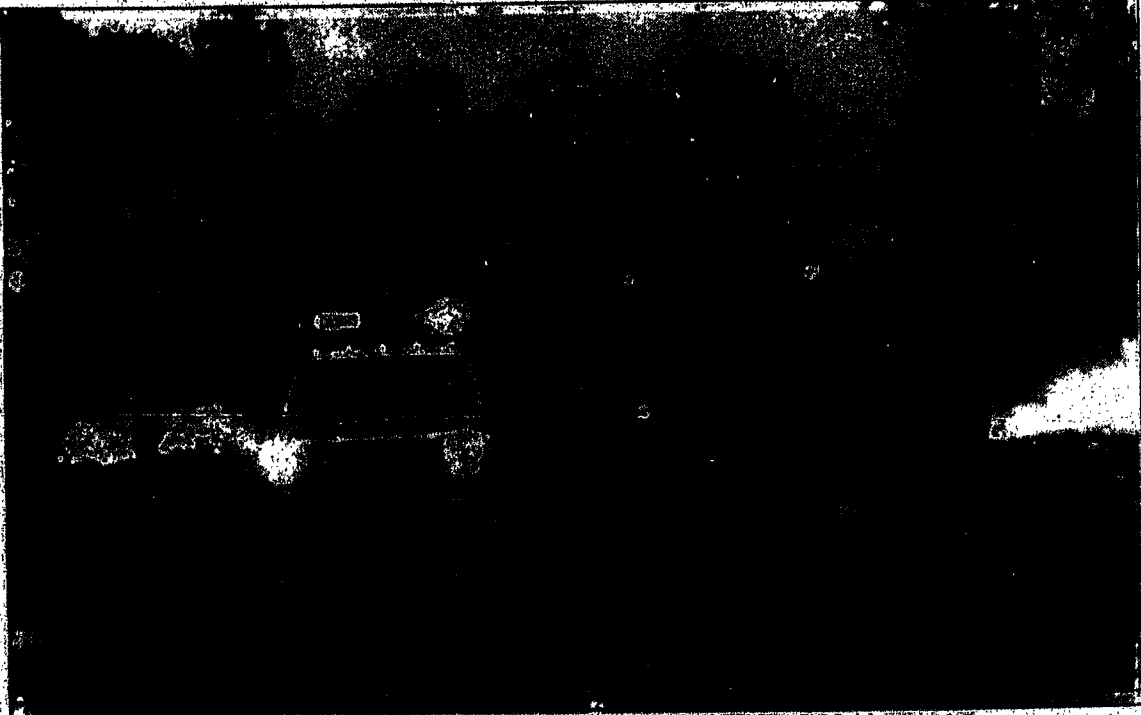

Coward said she liked neither plan, but would have voted for the second one. If given her choice, however, Coward would have picked an option that was apparently not seriously considered.

"Truly, I believe the whole county should have been redistricted."

Board attorney Gerald Gex said he plans to hand-deliver the redistricting plan to the Justice Department Monday morning when he meets with department representatives in Washington D.C.

The board accepted bids on computer equipment for the tax

Private dump fire clouds county skies

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The BaySide Volunteer Fire Department was called to the scene of three fires in a private dump area behind Vic and Linda Aime's residence at 907 Fricke Road off Hwy. 90.

The black smoke from burning tires could be clearly seen from Hwy. 603 around 5 p.m. Thursday.

Behind the Aime home on Fricke is an area where piles of garbage, debris and trash have been dumped. Several of these mounds were burning Thursday evening.

The firefighters, under the direction of Beanie Zoerner, back-burned the areas surrounding the fires to contain them and keep the dump fire from spreading. Zoerner said there was nothing else they could do at the time except to let the fires burn out since someone had thrown tires into the piles.

Zoerner stated that the EPA (Environmental Protection Agency) needed to be involved.

"This is not the first time we have been called out here for fires," Zoerner added. "With it being on private property, there is little we can do until the fire marshal does something."

Linda Aime, who reported that she had just arrived home from her work, said she did not know that there was a dump back there, and added, "I don't go back there, you will have to talk to my husband."

assessor/collector's office, and authorized Bill Mitchell, a consultant with the Hancock County Sand Beach Advisory Committee, to apply for a permit for the renourishing of 6.2 miles of Hancock County beaches.

Mitchell said the application is for the entire 6.2 stretch of waterfront from Washington Avenue to Buccaneer Park, even though the committee does not intend that the whole area be renourished. An all-encompassing permit will give the county leeway in setting priorities and finishing the work.

The permit, which is being based on a plan to dredge sand from offshore in Harrison County, should take 90 to 120 days to be approved, Mitchell added.

The board also agreed to support a grant application from the South Mississippi Exchange Clubs Family Child Center to fund a multidisciplinary child abuse team and a court education program.

The Family Child Center serves Hancock, Harrison, Jackson and Stone counties. The multidisciplinary team uses community health, law, social and human services agents to develop plans to deal with physical and sexual child abuse cases in the counties. The court education program helps orient a child before he is to appear in court to testify in an abuse case.

Family Child Center Executive Director Bridget Logan said in asking for the grant that the Family Child Center is the first center in the state to implement such programs. If the programs are successful here, she said, the Family Child Center will be able to take the programs to other child abuse centers in Mississippi.

The accident occurred near the drawbridge and congested traffic for several hundred feet. Bay St. Louis police rerouted traffic into the westbound lane at the scene of the accident as emergency personnel transported the injured to Gulfport Memorial Hospital and the Mrs. Holloman's body to Riemann Funeral Home in Gulfport.

According to the spokesperson, Holloman apparently lost control of his westbound vehicle due to the weather, crossed the median and hit Mrs. Sawyer's vehicle head-on.

State Trooper Wilbert Myles is in charge of the investigation.

Card

of Thanks

We would like to thank you for the recognition given to us concerning the bows and American flags we placed on the poles in the second and third block of de Montluzin Avenue.

But mostly, we'd like to thank the residents of the two blocks for their donations to help defray the expenses and for their support. Thanks, also, to Elmer Boyd and Willard Gavagnie for their help.

Sad to say, though, we've had a few bows and flags to "disappear" and have had to replace them.

If they were stolen, we hope they were displayed with pride—as that was the reason for putting them up.

We thank God for the end of the war, and I'm sure it was the prayers of millions that made it possible.

Now, let's send twice as many prayers in thanksgiving for our prayers being answered so quickly.

Gwenn Myers (left), president of the Hancock County Exchange Club, and Bridget Logan (right), executive director of the South Mississippi Exchange Clubs Family Child Center, inform Yvonne Landry, Youth Court administrator, that the Hancock County Board of Supervisors has declared April as Child Abuse Awareness Month for the County. Myers and Logan kicked off the Exchange Club's Blue Ribbon Campaign to spread awareness of the problem of child abuse at the Youth Court. They put large ribbons on public buildings and are passing out small ribbons for people to wear. Logan said South Mississippi is the worst area in the state for incidents of child abuse. The Family Child Center offers several services for abuse victims and their families, including a parent aide program to offer supportive services to families where there has been abuse; a court education program that orients a child before his court appearance; and a multidisciplinary child abuse team that uses community agency representatives to coordinate investigations and develop community plans for physical and sexual abuse cases. awaiting consideration in House at this point.

"Funding could be taken care of today, if the legislature so wishes, without the involvement of H.B. 1597. So funding is not the issue."

Franckiewicz commented that the funding provisions of H.B. 1597 are not generating controversy. The provisions that are generating it include the elimination of background checks on minority stockholders and property owners who lease property to gaming operations; the elimination of Coast Guard regulation of dockside vessels; the opening to dockside gaming facilities of all navigable waterways in counties bordering the Mississippi River or other bodies of water mentioned in the bill; and the seven cents per square foot tidelands lease for gaming facilities.

He reiterated that H.B. 1597 would not stand in the way of licensing an operation from a funding standpoint, since other funding bills are still alive.

Franckiewicz said he thinks H.B. 1597 will come up in Senate committee next week, that it will be amended to be strictly a funding bill, and that it will go to conference committee so that House and Senate representatives can discuss the bill.

After Franckiewicz spoke, Clerk of Council Mike Cuevas read a letter written by Rutherford to be given to Franckiewicz and Compretta at the meeting. Rutherford gave a brief synopsis of the dockside controversy's history in the county, speculated on the number of jobs and amount of revenue it would bring into the county, and gave his opinions about the provisions of H.B. 1597.

He wrote that he endorses two sections, the funding and the tidelands lease provisions. He said he does not endorse the taxes section, which he thinks should accrue on a yearly basis instead of a monthly one, and the section eliminating background checks.

Rutherford also stated he has not reached a decision on other matters addressed in the bill.

After Franckiewicz commented on a few other items, including local responsibility for governing the safety of the "twilight zone" between a ship and the shore (piers, marinas, wharfs, etc.), the council ended the workshop because Wilkerson, Farve and Thriffley had other meetings to attend.

Carter Bise: 'Not a gambling proponent'

BY TRACI BONNEY

Carter Bise, a possible candidate for special counsel on gambling matters to the City of Bay St. Louis, says he had no involvement in the failed effort to vote dockside gambling into Harrison County last year.

"As a citizen of Harrison County, I was not even polled," he stated.

Bise said speculation linking him to dockside gambling proponents probably stemmed from his being shown on local news footage in December when cruise vessel gaming was voted into Hancock County. Bise, who was employed by Jobs for Hancock County at the time of the election, was shown clapping when the vote was announced at the county courthouse.

"Actually, what I did was stand up, clap twice and turn around to speak to someone behind me," he said.

"I was hired by Jobs for Hancock County because of my experience with election law. The group hired me to make sure the election was run cleanly, which it was."

Bise said another reason he was hired last year was that he has no ties to Hancock County. This, he commented, may be why Mayor Edward Favre placed Bise's name before the city council as possible counsel on dockside gambling questions.

Speculation linking Bise to Harrison County gambling proponents was voiced at the March 5 city council meeting when Favre said he had contacted the Gulfport attorney. The mayor and council plan to retain another attorney for dockside gambling matters because city attorney John Scalfide, who owns beachfront property in an area being considered for gaming sites, will have to recuse himself if a question is brought before him concerning gambling facilities or locations.

Bise said of his views on gambling, "I'm not pro or con. I'm just sort of there."

He also reiterated his lack of activism on the issue by saying, "I'm totally uninvolved in gambling. I'm ridiculously uninvolved in gambling."

ON PATROL

GRAND LARCENY

Officer Gus Aime of the Bay St. Louis Police Department reported the arrests of two Gulfport residents Friday in connection with the theft of a VCR from Sears on Hwy. 90.

Aime said the arrests followed a call placed about 1:03 p.m. Friday. Arrested were Lucien Lee Palode, 23, and Inez L. Howard, 25. Palode was charged with grand larceny, failure to yield, resisting arrest, and speeding. He is incarcerated under a bond of $3,150. Howard was charged with grand larceny and is incarcerated under a bond of $2,500.

Another suspect was still at large at the time of the report, according to Aime. He is described as being 5'9", 160 pounds, medium build and black. He was reported to be wearing jeans, a white t-shirt and a stonewashed denim jacket with a red and yellow design on it.

Aime said the call was placed after Palode allegedly grabbed a VCR from a shelf at Sears, ran into the parking lot and drove away, leaving Howard in the store. Howard was reported to have fled on foot.

Denise DeGeorge, while en route to the scene, spotted the car Palode was driving on Hwy. 90 and began pursuit, Aime said. He reported that DeGeorge followed Palode into Pass Christian, where his car wrecked on Cedar Ave. Palode then fled on foot, according to the report, and two off-duty officers, Shane Corr and Clifton Malley, assisted DeGeorge. Corr caught Palode.

Aime said Howard was later apprehended on Frontage Road by Bay Pointe apartments.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

This is the time of year I really enjoy driving around the area viewing the many azaleas in bloom.

The winter has not been too harsh and it appears to have been helpful to the azaleas.

The only problem is when we have a very hard rain and it almost strips azaleas in full bloom.

The next time you are driving about, you may take time to look at the beautiful blooms.

Chamber members and their guests do not want to forget The Chamber Pot which will be held on Monday from 11:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m.

The event will be held at the Civic Center located on Longfellow Drive.

Admission to the Red Beans and Rice mixer is $4 plus a business card per person.

I hope to see you on Monday.

I realize we had a little rain on Friday night, yet it doesn't take it long with March winds to dry out the woods.

It appears that we have had a lot of woods fires already this year and it is very important to be careful with fire.

Over one half of the fires last weekend in Hancock County were caused by trash burnings which had gotten out of control.

Folks should be aware of the fact that one can be held responsible for letting a fire get out of hand.

Fires destroy so many acres of our woodlands each year in Hancock County.

Fines can be stiff as a wild fire can destroy thousands of dollars in only a few minutes.

Please be careful with your burning.

March 17-23 is National Poison Prevention Week

Every day—somewhere, some place—youngsters swallow something they shouldn't. This happens at least half a million times a year. Many of these accidents are preventable.

All it takes is a moment to use the child-resistant cap on the medicine container or household chemical and return it to a safe place.

Let's all do our part to stop child poisonings. According to the Mississippi Pharmacists Association, hints on making your home safe for children are available by sending a postcard to: Poison Prevention, Washington, D.C. 20207.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

A beneficial national energy strategy

After 18 months of public hearings the President has sent to the Congress a national energy strategy dedicated to providing the nation with secure supplies of reasonably-priced energy, produced and used in environmentally responsible ways.

Many already are taking potshots at the plan, contending it relies too heavily on promoting new energy production. I think the emphasis should be on production, but this strategy doesn't stop there.

Deputy Secretary of Energy Henson Moore, my former Congressional colleague from Louisiana, has detailed for me more than 20 recommendations in the plan to improve energy conservation and efficiency. These actions include the conservation of oil through alternative fuels and technology programs, along with a renewable energy investment tax credit. The plan expands the use of mortgage financing incentives for energy efficient homes and increases the use of voluntary home efficiency ratings.

The Administration's conservation strategy sets cost-effective appliance and equipment efficiency standards, requires energy efficiency labeling for light bulbs, commercial space heating, space cooling, ventilation, water heating and refrigeration, office equipment, and electric motors up to 25 horsepower.

It strengthens building efficiency standards and assists states like Mississippi to expand their use, and it provides for tax-free treatment of utility discounts for efficiency investments by consumers. It scraps older, less fuel efficient vehicles and increases research and development on more efficient technologies for cars, trucks, trains and aircraft.

This national energy strategy is refreshingly honest and realistic in what it seeks to accomplish. It does not seek to impose the judgment of the government on consumers but leaves energy choices to individuals.

There are no new gasoline taxes or taxes on imported oil to drive up the cost of energy. In fact, the plan contains recommendations to lower the costs of energy by removing roadblocks to a more efficient marketplace and providing more fuels and energy technologies from which to choose.

It seeks to enhance our national security by reducing the total amount of oil we need and increasing the amount of oil we produce at home. The intended net result is reduced dependence on unreliable energy suppliers.

Frankly a national energy policy is long overdue. The President's proposal is a good one because it reduces consumer costs, promotes energy conservation and efficiency, and reduces energy's environmental impacts. But, it's also good because its major emphasis is on increasing our domestic production of oil and gas to halt our dependence on OPEC countries.

I have no doubt that when it comes to a national energy policy, we can do better than this proposal. But it is a good working document. Now it's up to the Congress to build on it.

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor Ray Mabus

Concern over state's shortfall continues

By now, you've probably read or heard about Mississippi's budget shortfall.

Because of the shortfall, our state government has endured about $60 million in cuts. So far, the action taken has not resulted in any serious problems for those who educate our children.

Time, however, is running out. Those who teach our children are struggling under the uncertainty of further budget cuts.

We can offer relief to those who have had this gray cloud lingering over their heads. That is why I am endorsing the Mississippi Senate's proposed use of "rainy day" funds as a way to prevent any further budget cuts this fiscal year.

A Senate revenue bill has recommended using $25 million in reserve funds. This plan could be modified so that sufficient reserve funds could be made available to be used, if needed, to prevent any more cutbacks.

This step would stabilize education funding for the remainder of this fiscal year so that our educators can concentrate on what they do best: Teaching our children.

This would also stabilize other critical services that Mississippians depend upon.

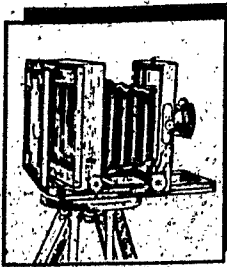

This proposal would not be my first choice; if there were another way to prevent more cuts. But now, as we head into the final stretch of the current Legislative sessions, it appears that new revenue could not be generated quickly enough to hold the line on further reductions.

When a child is sick, the parents don't hesitate to use their savings to make that child well again. We should do no less by using rainy day funds to help our ailing budget.

Part of the proposal would be to follow the Senate recommendation by amending the law to put more money in the reserve funds during good times so that such funds can be there during tough times.

This might also help even out the budget ups and downs that state government traditionally

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Entire board should have voted

Dear Editor:

Are the people of Hancock County going to lose one of the best high school principals we have ever had because of an unfair vote by our school board?

As per your paper, one board member was absent and four present. Of the four present, one voted to hire him, two were against and one did not vote.

On a matter of this importance, all board members should be present, even if it constitutes calling a special meeting.

All residents of Hancock County should be properly represented.

I feel we were not, especially Beat 1, as our representative did not vote.

No reason was given for not renewing Mr. Hillman's contract. We, the people of Hancock, are due an explanation as to why.

I feel since the people of Hancock elected these people, we should have a reason.

A man who served 11 years cannot be all bad.

Hancock residents, speak up now.

Words fly at workshop meeting-turned-hearing

BY TRACI BONNEY
Docksideside gambling industry representatives, gaming proponents and opponents aired their opinions, concerns and gripes to Sen. Vic Frankiewicz after a Bay St. Louis city council workshop meeting Friday night.

The workshop started at 4:30 p.m. and ended at 5:50 when councilmen John Wilkerson, Tom Farve and Jim Thrifflie left to attend previously scheduled meetings. Councilman Jim Rutherford and Mayor Edward Favre were not present at the workshop due to prior commitments. The mayor is not required to attend council workshops.

Council chairman Charlie Sojanna remained at the meeting while audience members asked questions and made comments.

Don Tyner, president of Mardi Gras Casino Corp., told Frankiewicz that the gaming industry has the same problems with recently-passed House Bill 1597 that Frankiewicz has. Tyner said "the industry" does not want to see background checks on property owners and minority stockholders (those with five percent or less of a gaming company's stock) eliminated and it doesn't really want to have access to all the navigable waterways in the county. H.B. 1597's provisions include both these items.

The navigable waterways were opened up to docksideside gaming activity by a provision supposedly meant to deal with questions concerning the legality of Bay Cove Harbour's proposed location for a gaming facility. Tyner said the bill was supposed to deal only with the Bay Cove situation and not open up all the rivers, canals and bayous in the county to docksideside facilities.

Tyner said the gaming industry does not have a problem with being regulated by the Coast Guard. However, the industry does object to the word "certified" in a provision stating a docksideside vessel must be certified to carry at least 200 patrons.

He explained that the process, leading to the certification of a vessel by the Coast Guard would double the cost of constructing the vessel.

Terry Wyly asked who was pushing for elimination of background checks if the industry did not mind them.

Sandy Steckler, attorney for the LA Cruise and a recently registered lobbyist, said the lobbyists were, but no longer are. He explained that the request for the elimination of background checks came from Rep. Sonny Meredith, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, to the State Tax Commission.

Steckler said Meredith made the request because he thought the checking being mandated was too extensive, time- and money-consuming. Steckler, who is being monitored by the state because of his involvement with the LA Cruise, said the state checks everything and everyone linked with a person involved with a gaming operation that applies for a license.

Frankiewicz said he was glad to hear the gaming industry does not support the controversial provisions of H.B. 1597. He referred to the Gaming Control Act of 1990 and other gambling-related laws, and stated, "I think the law currently does everything that H.B. 1597 said needed to be done."

He directed his next remarks to Tyner, Steckler and any other gaming industry representatives present. Giving a brief summary of the history of docksideside gaming in Mississippi, Frankiewicz highlighted times when miscommunication, poor understanding of existing legislation, poor drafting of new legislation and other problems contributed to the distrust of local residents toward the legislature and the gaming industry.

Bay St. Louis resident Peggy Dutton confirmed Frankiewicz's statements and said that local distrust grew by leaps and bounds when the gaming lobbyists backed H.B. 1597.

The issue of gaming facility location was mentioned. In past public hearings, residents have voiced concern that gaming facilities located near the Bay of St. Louis railroad bridge would be too near local churches and elementary schools.

Frankiewicz said state law authorizes the tax commission to regulate locations of any business (gaming facility, liquor store, bar, etc.) that might have a negative impact on a school or church.

Franya Ethridge brought up two questions. Her first concerned whether or not the state legislature will consider limiting the number of gaming facilities that can operate in a given city or county.

Frankiewicz said there is no cap yet, but economic development representatives want one because a limit will both promote a better quality of facility and keep the patronage of docksideside operations from spreading so thin that no operation will turn a profit.

Ethridge's second question deals with the possible elimination of Coast Guard regulation. She said if the regulation is removed, docksideside vessels won't even have to be able to float. What happens to the railroad bridge, she asked, if a hurricane comes through the area?

"Won't those boats become just like battering rams?" she asked.

Frankiewicz said the state hasn't addressed that issue, but he thinks it could be done through local regulation.

Other items addressed included parking concerns; Mississippi's self-government versus federal intervention in gambling issues; and the fact that about half the gaming proponents present were not residents of Bay St. Louis.

One gambling proponent said opponents were continuing to complain about gambling coming into the area when it has already been legalized.

Dutton answered, "The issue isn't whether or not it passed. We're well aware that it did."

"The issue is where it's going to go, and that affects us where we live."

This proposal in no way lessens the need for additional revenue the next fiscal year, which begins July 1.

While I remain opposed to raising the general sales tax rate, the Senate has made important progress toward a budget solution. The House, likewise, is well on its way to hammering out a similar plan.

However, by using these rainy day funds, we can address this year's problems. And by taking care of what has been an issue since last summer, we will then be able to focus on what we need to do to keep it from happening again.

Bay native Williams named events marketing manager

Tish H. Williams has been appointed national events marketing manager for the Baltimore-based RP Foundation Fighting Blindness, a national eye research foundation.

Williams will be responsible for constructing and implementing a comprehensive plan to raise funds through the marketing of such Foundation-sponsored events as celebrity golf and tennis tournaments, sailing regattas and a special four market promotion with the National Hockey League.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Michael Haas Sr. of Bay St. Louis.

This year, through the Foundation's 73 national and international affiliates, volunteers and events program staff are expected to raise more than $1.5 million in revenue for RP (retinitis pigmentosa) research efforts.

Prior to joining the RP Foundation Fighting Blindness, Williams was the executive director of the Lauderdale County Tourism Commission in Meridian. There she worked with community leaders to plan and promote more than 50 annual events sponsored by various non-profit and private sector organizations. Last year she served as the president of the Mississippi Travel Promotion Association.

TISH H. WILLIAMS

Williams began her career in New York when she was recruited to head up volunteer operations for the Miss USA and Miss Universe Pageants in 1981.

Later she served as project director for Mississippi's involvement in the 1984 Louisiana World Exposition in New Orleans, coordinating a 30-person staff and producing 20, 12-hour days of special events. In addition, she has headed the marketing department for one of the largest entertainment and convention complexes in the southeast.

Miss Teenage America applicants sought

Contenders for the 1992 Miss Teenage America title may pick up entry forms in any U.S. Kmart apparel department.

Entry deadline is June 1. Candidates must be enrolled in high school through at least 1992 and have special achievements.

The Miss Teenage America program, now in its 30th year, is the nation's most prestigious achievement program recognizing outstanding young women between the ages of 12 and 18.

It is not a beauty pageant or a talent contest. The main emphasis of the program is on scholastic achievement, individual accomplishment, general awareness, community service, poise, appearance and personality.

A prerequisite for entering the program is a 3.0 grade point average, according to TEEN Magazine, which operates the program.

The young woman who is named Miss Teenage America 1992, will receive a $15,000 college scholarship from Kmart and an entire wardrobe from Kmart Apparel, modeling opportunities with the program's sponsors and her own monthly column in TEEN Magazine.

She will have the opportunity to travel nationally, appear on radio and television programs and on the cover of TEEN Magazine.

Kmart Apparel has been a major corporate sponsor of the Miss Teenage America program for the past seven years.

"The Miss Teenage America program represents high American ideals and a strong commitment to education. We are proud to have Miss Teenage America as our teen spokesperson," said Glenn B. Smith, president of Kmart Apparel.

The female eagle, about five years old, and the male, about four years old, nested in a stolen osprey nest, where they hatched a chick in January. The eaglet took his first flight shortly after noon today.

"We didn't think they would nest because eagles generally don't sexually mature until they are 6-7 years old," said Dr. Ted Simons, research biologist with the National Park Service.

The eagles are part of a program sponsored and coordinated by the National Park Service and funded, in part, by the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Fund, directed by the state Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

The Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Fund was organized in 1986 and is primarily funded by volunteer contributions through the income tax check-off program. Each taxpayer in the state may check a box on his state income tax form, specifying that a certain amount of his tax refund be donated to the Wildlife Heritage Fund.

A taxpayer must contribute at least $1, if he wishes to participate, but may contribute any portion or all of his refund if he or she wishes.

Since 1987, the Wildlife Heritage Fund has contributed a total of $25,000 to the Park Service's eagle program, said Bob Jones, biologist at the MDWFP's Natural Science Museum in Jackson.

"If it wasn't for the Wildlife Heritage Fund and the tax check-off program, we (MDWFP) couldn't help the eagle program, and it would have been difficult for the Park Service to have conducted the program," Jones said.

Bald eagles once flourished along the Mississippi River and Mississippi's barrier islands. But they began to decline in the 1940s and, more or less, disappeared in the 1960s.

The primary cause for the decline was the widespread use of chlorinated hydrocarbons, such as DDT, which contaminated fish, the main staple in an eagle's diet.

Chlorinated hydrocarbons make an eagle's egg shell weak and causes it to break during incubation.

Now with the use of chlorinated hydrocarbons curtailed in most areas, the park Service is attempting to bring the eagles back to the Gulf Coast by employing an old falconer's technique.

The technique is based on the premise that when an eagle reaches sexual maturity it will return to nest in the area where it grew up, Jones said. An eagle reaches sexual maturity from four to six years after it's hatched.

The program began in Florida, where surplus eggs were taken from active eagles' nests. The eggs were then shipped to a laboratory in Oklahoma where the eggs were hatched and the young nurtured for seven weeks. During this time, biologists and technicians, concealed from the birds, fed the young eagles by using a hand puppet resembling an adult bald eagle.

The seven-week-old eaglets were then shipped to Horn Island where they were placed in an enclosed "hacking tower," high above the ground. During the next several weeks, biologists fed the eaglets by using a mechanical feeding system. During their raising, the young eagles were never in physical contact with people.

Biologists began gently urging the eaglets to flight by removing the bars from the ends of the hacking tower enclosure, allowing the young eagles to walk to the edge of the platform.

Gradually, the eaglet's wings grew stronger, and finally the eaglets took the step that launched them into flight.

After learning to fly, the young eagles remained around the hacking tower until summer approached, when they flew north.

It's hoped that the two eagles that recently returned to Horn Island are the first of many who will return to the island to hatch and raise their young.

TRAVELS

Filmmaker Richard Goodwin concludes his leisurely trip through Europe's inland waterways with a trip through France's wine country in Part Three of "Barging Through Europe" on "Travels," at 9 p.m., Thursday, March 21 on Mississippi ETV.

Heading south down the Seine toward the Rhine, the intrepid crew of the Leontyne passes through 189 individual hand-cranked locks to reach the fertile Rhone valley. They arrive at the ancient village of Montbard, near Dijon, just in time for Bastille Day, July 14.

Turkey hunting begins March 23

Mississippi's spring turkey season begins March 23 and continues through May 1. This year, there is no split season.

Mississippi has a growing population of wild turkeys, so hunters should expect a good hunting period, says the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

Last year 36,000 Eastern wild turkeys were harvested in Mississippi by 78,000 hunters.

This spring, turkey hunting for gobblers will be permitted on 32 state wildlife management areas and national wildlife refuges. In addition, hunting will be allowed on many national forest lands.

Turkey hunting hours are one-half hour before sunrise until one-half hour after sunset.

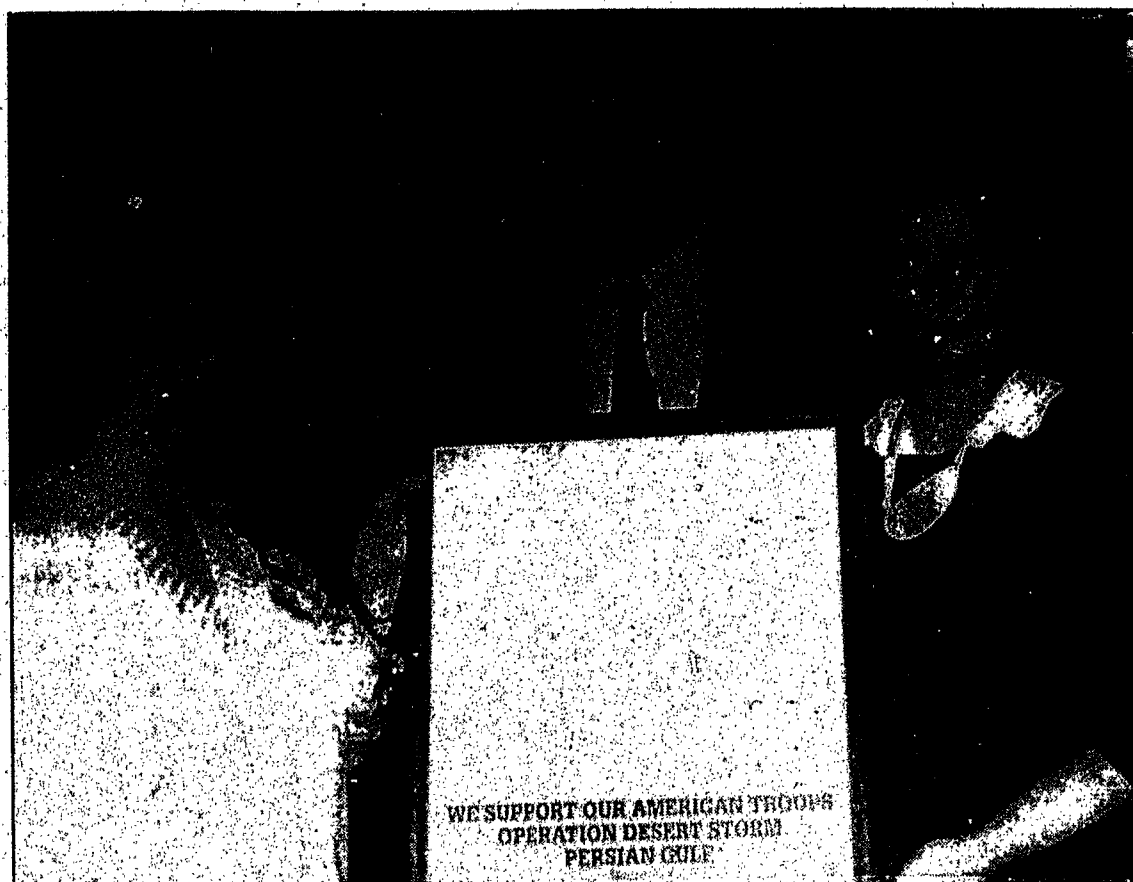

The bag limit is one gobbler per day, but not more than three gobblers during the spring season.

Wildlife enforcement officials in Jackson say that portions of the following counties are closed to turkey hunting this year: Alcorn, Benton, Hinds, Humphreys, Itawamba, Madison, Marshall, Panola, Pontotoc, Prentiss, Quitman, Tallahatchie, Tippah and Union.

Tishomingo and Lee counties are closed to turkey hunting. Hunters should refer to the Digest of Mississippi Game Laws, 1990-91 for a complete listing of areas closed to turkey hunting.

Meanwhile, state hunter education officials encourage hunters to practice safety during their times afield.

"Turkey hunting can be dangerous," Hunter Education Supervisor L. J. Smith said.

BHS powder puff football features male cheerleaders

As a benefit for the Bay High School YMCA (Young Mississippi Congressional Association), local merchants are sponsoring a powder puff competition Wednesday between teams of girls decked in full football gear while the boys cheer along the sidelines, with pom-poms in hand.

From 6 to 8:30 p.m. March 20, the students will reverse roles in the spirit of fun at the J.D. McCulloch Stadium.

The students are hoping to raise $3,000 to cover the expense of 60 students who plan to travel to Jackson where they enact the roles of political leaders, from governor on down.

Admission to the powder puff games is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students and children.

There will be cheerleader competition at half time, and, according to American history teacher Joan Thomas, "The students are having a ball. They are really outfitted for this."

Sponsoring the grades are Popeye's Fried Chicken, Domino's Pizza, Burger King and McDonald's.

VA disability increase reflected

Larry D. Woodard, director of the VA Regional Office in Jackson announced recent legislation increases VA disability compensation to veterans and dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) to surviving spouses and children by 5.4 percent.

These increases are effective Jan. 1, 1991. To avoid confusion, Woodard noted veterans receiving service connected compensation and persons in receipt of DIC should be made aware that their next few checks will reflect different amounts.

The new rate will not show up in checks until April 1, 1991, which will include retroactive payments.

As an example, if you are a single veteran with a 30 percent service connected disability, your checks will be as follows: March 1991, $220 (old rate); April 1991, $264 (new rate plus difference between old and new rate for January through March 1991); May 1, 1991, $231 (new rate).

For further information, please call the Jackson VA Regional Office toll-free on 1-800-827-2028, Jackson area residents should call 965-4873.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, MARCH 17, 1991-1B

Bergerons have arrived in Ecuador

Editor's Note: Uless and Mary Lee Bergeron are from Bay St. Louis and are now learning Spanish to help in serving as members of the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. They are members of the First Baptist Church, Bay St. Louis, and both were associated with Seymour's Jewelry and Gift Shop.

Hola amigos:
How excited we are to finally be out of the States! We left Bay St. Louis January 7 and arrived January 8 in Quito, Ecuador.

For the next six months our major task is to learn Spanish. We attend the South American Spanish Institute five days a week, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. We are being individually tutored. Some days at 11 a.m. our tutors go out into the city with us to help us put to use what we are learning. We ride buses, go to markets, etc., where we can interact with the people of Ecuador.

Usually after school we go home for a late lunch and rest. After lunch we are tired because of the intensive study and also because the altitude of Quito is 9,500 feet. After our rest we then go back out on the streets and practice our Spanish. It is good that almost no one in Quito speaks English.

We have been eating out a good bit because it is so inexpensive and because the altitude also affects cooking. Everything we have cooked has been a disaster. Now I ask you, how can you ruin spaghetti? The spaghetti we cooked could have been used to glue carpet around a swimming pool.

We live on the 10th floor of a large apartment complex. We have lots of very large windows which we can hardly drag ourselves away from because the view of Quito is so very beautiful. Quito is a city of a million or so people and it is nestled down between green mountains. Some of the mountains look like a patchwork quilt because of the crops planted on them; some have houses climbing up them, and one is capped with snow.

We ask that you remember us when you go before the Father.

Pray that we learn the language so that we will be better able to share God's love with the people of Ecuador and Peru.

Charito is a gracious lady who lives in a nearby apartment building and who cannot speak a word of English. We have been to her apartment for refreshments and to meet her husband. Pray that as we cultivate a friendship with Charito the Holy Spirit will give us the opportunity to share the gospel of our Lord Jesus.

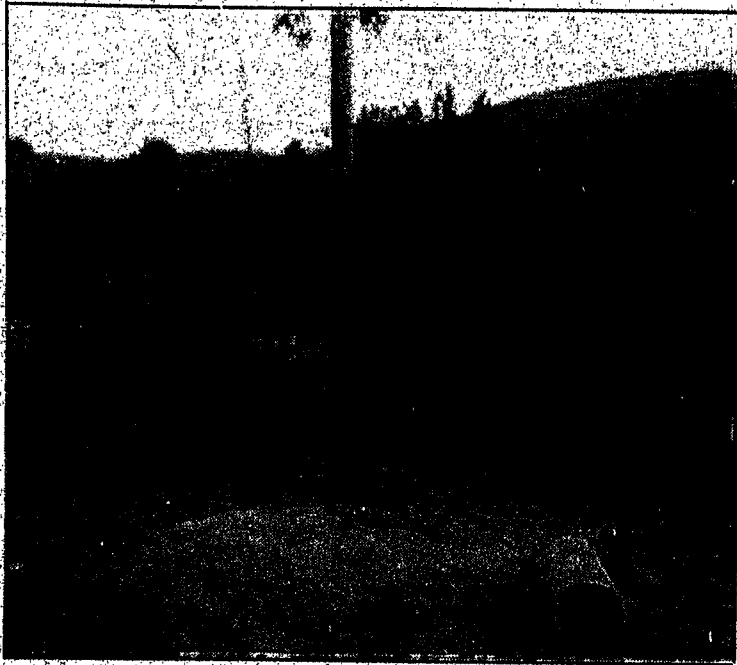

Pray for us as we witness to our language tutors; we both have a different tutor each week, and we have had the opportunity to share our faith several times.

In His love,
Uless and Mary Lee Bergeron

Coast Electric to send Abbott, Stamps to D.C.

Natalie Abbott, a Hancock High School junior and Alison Stamps, a junior from Long Beach High, were selected as winners of the 1991 Washington Youth Tour, sponsored by Coast Electric Power Association.

The two winners were chosen from a group of 155 students who entered the cooperative's essay/speech contest.

Both Abbott and Stamps will represent Coast Electric at the Electric Power Association of Mississippi Youth Leadership Seminar scheduled for March 21-22. They will also go on an all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C., the week of June 8-15 for the annual Youth Tour coordinated by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

Students from all across Mississippi participate in the leadership seminar each year as a springboard for the Washington Youth Tour.

Students attend conference

Coast residents Ken Booker of Bay St. Louis, Maurice Payne of Kiln, Shannon Lawson of Biloxi, and LaQuasha Smith, also of Biloxi, attended the recent Mississippi Achievement Conference at the University of Mississippi. Outstanding minority high school students by special invitation visited Old Miss for an in-depth look at the school's facilities and academic opportunities.

ton trip explained Robert Occhi, Coast Electric's general manager.

"This program reviews the history and structure of cooperative businesses and educates students on the developments and impact of rural electrification," he stated.

The Washington trip brings together more than 1,200 students. "Electric cooperatives from 47 states sponsor students for the Youth Tour of Washington," stated Occhi.

Occhi said students visit historical sights around the capital city as well as witness firsthand the cultural and political environment of the nation's government.

"This is the fifth year Coast Electric has offered the contest especially for 11th grade students attending schools in Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties," commented Occhi.

"We commend the educational community for helping us bring this program to local students. We'd also like to express our sincere appreciation to each teacher, principal and school administrator for allowing their students this opportunity to challenge themselves by competing in our contest."

The educational community as a whole needs to be recognized also for their efforts in seeking out programs such as this one which affords students an experience of a lifetime," commented Occhi.

Other finalists for this year's contest included Carva Latino and Jeremy Day from Hancock High and Carrie Jones from Mercy Cross High School. Latino was chosen alternate and will also participate in the EPSs of Mississippi Youth Leadership Seminar.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy
McGuire Caire

Happy St. Patrick's Day to all, a day which many started celebrating yesterday, continuing through today with feasting and fun. Many cooks all over America, I am sure, have been busy cooking up corned beef and cabbage, the traditional Irish-American food for the feast!

And, while here in America we celebrate with parades and parties, our counterparts in Ireland observe St. Patrick's more as a religious holiday, and their traditional fare for the day is salmon, or perhaps a good Irish stew.

Cabbage in Ireland is cooked, not with corned beef but with bacon, a thick, ham-like bacon quite unlike our bacon, but quite delicious! Some authorities, or would-be authorities, tell us that corned beef was all that many Irish could afford when they first came to this country, hence its popularity!

Whatever the case, I'm quite fond of corned beef and cabbage, and corned beef briskets are especially priced at our area super-markets these days, as is cabbage. (And, if you aren't inclined to cook a brisket, there's always the deli!)

Potatoes, too, are in ample supply. I've just brought home some of those just-arrived new crop creamer potatoes, so tasty. There are also special prices on red and russet potatoes, and on yams. Spring asparagus is in, along with large avocados and artichokes, three of my very favorite vegetables.

Asparagus, quickly steamed and sauced with melted butter, with perhaps a topping of sautéed almonds or pecans, is a heavenly dish. Some cooks insist that the larger stalks have better flavor, but I prefer the thin, thin stalks when I find them.

And, in honor of St. Joseph's Day on Tuesday (March 19) I shall stuff some artichokes, an easy undertaking. Artichokes were made for stuffing and for enjoying! Here's:

STUFFED ARTICHOKE
Prepare the artichokes for stuffing. Holding by the stalk, hit the top of each artichoke against your counter or cutting board, so as to loosen the leaves and make it easier to open the choke for stuffing.

Cut off the tops (a half-inch or so). With a sharp knife, trim the thorny leaf tips, remove the small bottom leaves, and trim the stem even with the base of the artichoke, so that it stands straight. Spread the leaves apart, pull out the soft center leaves and scrape off the fuzzy thistle center (the choke) with a spoon. Stand the artichokes upside down while you mix up the stuffing or "dressing." So get busy.

6 large firm artichokes
1 1/2 cups or so seasoned bread crumbs
4 cloves garlic, minced
1/4 cup minced parsley
1 cup chopped ham or shrimp
1 cup or more (if needed) grated Parmesan or mixture of Parmesan and Romano
Salt, pepper to taste
1/2 pint olive oil, more if needed

Mix together the crumbs, garlic, parsley, grated cheese, ham or shrimp, and seasonings. Starting from the outside with the outer leaves, stuff the leaves with a teaspoon, working to the inside leaves. (I place the artichoke over a glass or small bowl to hold it, dribble stuffing and pack with the spoon.)

Of course, some stuffing mix spills over, but is caught by the plate I've put underneath, so I scoop it up and try again!

Mold the artichoke together lightly between your hands so that more of the stuffing will adhere to the leaves. Divide the oil between the artichokes, dribbling or using a squeeze bottle or whatever, so that coating is distributed.

In a large pot pack artichokes tightly, so that they won't topple over and lose stuffing. Fill pot 1/4 to 1/3 way up the artichokes, bring water to a boil, then cover the pot, and steam over low heat for 45 minutes, or a bit less, or until a leaf can be easily pulled off. (Six servings.)

I like to place a slice of lemon, held with a pick, atop each artichoke, with a generous sprinkling of cayenne pepper over. Remove the lemon when artichokes are done. Some cooks add extra olive oil and halved cloves of garlic to the cooking water for intensified flavor.

These artichokes are also delicious as appetizers, serving either the whole artichoke, or serving the stuffed leaves on a plate. Enjoy!

And, for the love of your tastebuds, don't pass up those luscious, ripely red strawberries showing up in our markets. Enjoy some spilling over frozen strawberry yogurt or ice cream, and double the enjoyment. Or, dip into sour cream, then into brown sugar for a quick and easy taste treat.

Veggie scramble high in protein and fiber

By now, most Americans know that their diets could be changed for the better. Unfortunately, major overhauls are often short-lived. As with anything, taking at "one day at a time" and slowly modifying eating habits is a more realistic way to reach a goal.

Red Bean Veggie Scramble is a dish that takes you one step in the right direction. Scrambled eggs have always been a vehicle for a variety of ingredient additions.

In this case, it's fiber-rich legumes (red beans) and a colorful array of vegetables. Well-seasoned, so flavor isn't lacking, this dish is appealing to the eye as well as the taste buds, yet contains at only about 200 calories per serving.

It's just one example of the cooking you can do with "today's egg." Always an important source of high-quality protein and low in saturated fat, eggs have been found to contain about 22 percent less cholesterol than previously believed.

That makes eggs a good choice to combine with complex carbohydrate-rich foods, including vegetables and grain products, in scrambles, omelets, egg salads and other quick-to-fix fishes.

RED BEAN
VEGGIE SCRAMBLE
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup halved, thinly sliced zucchini
1/2 cup chopped red pepper
1/2 cup drained canned red beans
6 eggs
1/4 cup low-fat milk
3/4 teaspoon garlic salt
3/4 teaspoon ground cumin
1/4 teaspoon liquid hot pepper seasoning

Shredded Monterey Jack cheese, optional

In large skillet over medium heat, cook zucchini, red pepper and onions in butter until tender but not brown, about 5 minutes. Add beans and cook 1 minute more.

Beat together remaining ingredients, except cheese, until blended. Pour over vegetables in skillet.

As mixture begins to set, gently draw an inverted pancake turner completely across bottom and sides of pan, forming large, soft curds.

Continue until eggs are thickened but still moist. Do not stir constantly. Remove from heat. Sprinkle with cheese, if desired.

Veterans home purchase program to be discussed

Ed Middlestet, executive director of the Veterans Home Purchase Board and a staff of board members will be in Bay St. Louis on March 28 to address the public on home purchases from the VHPB at below market interest rates.

The meeting will be in the Hancock County Courthouse

Board of Supervisors room at 2 p.m.

The Veterans Home Purchase Board was set up in 1936 by an act of the Mississippi State Legislature to provide a benefit in the form of a "below market interest rate" loan to the Mississippi veteran in appreciation for his service to our country. The present interest rate is 2 percent below the Veterans Administration interest rate.

Middlestet is scheduled to meet with the West Gulf Coast Board of Realtors on March 29, but has accepted an invitation from the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the Veterans Services Center to arrive on the Coast one day early to explain the Veterans Home Purchase Board program to the residents of Hancock County.

Anyone with an interest in the program and with the welfare of Hancock County veterans and widows is invited to attend this informative meeting.

Morning Stiffness: Arthritis Warning Sign #1

If your morning stiffness in the joints that lasts more than 30 minutes, you may have a condition called arthritis. And the earlier you seek treatment, the better the chances are that the arthritis can be arrested before it does permanent damage.

There are literally dozens of different types of arthritis, many of which may start off with morning stiffness. In point of fact however, different kinds of arthritis may lead to different kinds of damage to the joints affecting your life.

Arthritis is a condition which requires the treatment of these disorders by a specialist. Dr. M.D. Sedrish is board certified in both Medicine and Pediatrics. Once that period of training is successfully completed, the physician then begins an additional two to three year training program (called a "fellowship") in rheumatology, concentrating on the diagnosis and treatment of only the conditions known as arthritis and connective tissue diseases.

The end result of all these years of training is the ability to recognize what kind of arthritis the patient has, the understanding of which tests will pinpoint the diagnosis most efficiently and the knowledge of what treatment are most successful in combating the disease.

Once an accurate diagnosis is made, treatment can be begun and often in conjunction with your regular family doctor. Then, working together as a team, the Rheumatologist and your family doctor can keep you on the right track.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

Randall Smith

Proper pruning yields healthier plants, shrubs

Oh No! Why me? I can't! Help!

Yes, these are phrases of desperation often heard screaming from the mouths of many beginning gardeners when confronted with pruning.

Sometimes just the mere thought of making that first cut is enough to promote a countenance of perplexed anxiety followed by shakiness and a series of excuses (Heaven help us, even lies).

This plight to a beginning gardener is almost as serious as drinking bad water in Mexico. If you are suffering from these symptoms, you do not need to seek professional help (I hope) but to simply follow some pruning tips.

Before embarking upon the pruning endeavour, a person should understand why he or she is pruning.

There are about six reasons to prune landscape plants and they include: to control plant size, to improve plant shape and train plants (espallier and topiary), to reduce transplant shock, to remove plant tissues that are dead, broken, diseased or abnormal, to rejuvenate an old plant, and to remove spent flowers. Unless one of these reasons fits your need, it is unlikely the plant merits pruning.

Controlling plant size is the most common reason for pruning landscape plants that have overgrown their space. This type of pruning depends on the type of plant and the amount of space in which it grows. Some plants require pruning once or twice a year, some only require pruning on alternate years.

Many plants can be severely pruned while others will tolerate only light shearing of the foliage. Remember, never neglect for several years a plant that requires frequent pruning. This will prevent a severe pruning in later years.

Many plants often become leggy and straggly if not properly trained. Therefore, pruning can improve the shape and branching structure, and can train certain plants.

It is always best to shape or train the plant while it is young and actively growing. However, older shrubs can also be shaped if properly pruned.

The best time to prune certain deciduous and evergreen shrubs and trees for shape is during the late winter before new growth begins in the spring. It is also a good idea to remove unsightly sucker sprouts during the spring and summer while they are young and tender.

Branches that have been injured by insects, diseases or weather should be pruned regardless of the time of year to prevent damage to existing healthy tissue.

To determine if the tissue is alive or dead, scratch the bark lightly. If the tissue beneath the bark is bright green, the limb is alive, but if the tissue is brown, tan or black, the limb is dead.

Pruning also relieves transplanting shock by removing leaves and stems to compensate for roots lost during transplanting. This reduces transpiration (water loss through the leaves) which is crucial since the roots cannot absorb enough water to supply the leaves. Usually, this light, tip pruning involves removing about one-fourth of the foliage.

Rejuvenation is a form of severe pruning used only on broadleaf evergreens and deciduous plants to control old, overgrown plants and to rejuvenate leggy and straggly plants.

Proper watering and fertilization are very important for severely pruned plants. Rejuvenation can be a gradual process and generally involves removing one-third of the old canes and trunks each year over a three-year period. At the end of this time, the shrub will be smaller and consist of branches no more than three years old.

I vividly remember the first plant that I tried rejuvenating. When my mother saw it, she cried with pleasure (at least, I thought it was from pleasure). It looked pretty bad initially, but by the end of the growing season, it looked really nice and I was finally out of the dog house.

or shape.

However, over a period of time they may overgrow their space and require rejuvenating. When this occurs these plants can generally be severely pruned to correct the problem. However, not all broadleaf evergreens remain small. Most are vigorous and tall growers and may require periodic tip pruning or yearly pruning to control their size and shape.

These plants also respond to severe pruning when necessary.

Narrowleaf evergreens, on the other hand, are trees and shrubs that possess tiny, scale-like or needle-like leaves and some bear fruit-like cones. Examples of narrowleaf evergreens include many Junipers, Arborvitae, pine, cedars and spruce.

Pruning of these plants is totally different from pruning the broadleaf evergreens. They should never be severely pruned or death will be forthcoming. Occasional light shearing might be necessary to control size and should be conducted in the early summer after the new growth is made.

Whatever you do, never remove the central stem, never prune them severely, and always conform to their natural shape.

Deciduous shrubs (those that drop their leaves in winter) may require light to moderate tip pruning to encourage new growth and thick, bushy plants.

However, cover-grown deciduous shrubs can also be severely pruned without any plant injury.

Examples of deciduous shrubs include Forsythia, Spirea, Weigelia, lilac, snowball Viburnum, English dogwood, crape myrtle, and others.

Of these plants, Spirea, Weigelia and Forsythia are among the most mispruned plants in the landscape, so only remove the old, dead, weak and crowded branches.

These branches should be removed at the base of the plant. Please do not attempt hedging these plants, but simply thin them.

The next matter of urgency is when to prune. Timing your pruning is crucial and I receive many calls pertaining to this matter. Here are some hints that might help make the job a little easier.

Pruning to control plant size is best done from February to April for many plants. However, be sure to curtail pruning immediately after new growth begins in the spring to prevent depletion of stored foods that have been moved from the roots to the young developing leaves.

Some spring blooming deciduous and evergreen shrubs, like azaleas, Forsythia, Spireas, Weigelia and others should be pruned immediately after spring flowering.

Bay-Waveland Garden Club Flower Show

Things were blooming all over at the recently held Bay-Waveland Garden Club Flower Show, where 113 entries competed in creativity, educational, arboreal and other categories. Above, Alice Holmes (left), chairman of the state flower show school, and Nanette Murphree, president of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club and chairman of the show, survey the entries. Murphree said winners included Holmes, who garnered the educational award for her exhibit on recycling; Billie Snider, the award for the most blue ribbons; Alyce Newkirk, the creativity award; and Kerry Pritchard, the award of horticultural excellence, an arboreal award.

Landscaping seminar set for March 28

Homeowner lawns, trees and shrubs will be the topic of a one-day seminar on landscaping. The program will be Thursday, March 28 at Mississippi Power Company Auditorium in Bay St. Louis.

The morning session from 9:30 to 11:30 will cover traditional homeowner horticulture. The afternoon session from 1:30 to 3:30 will include landscaping with native plants, including wildflowers.

The morning program will include identification and treatment of insects and diseases, varieties of grasses, their care, fertilization requirements and seasonal maintenance practices. Pruning, fertilization and maintenance of trees will also be presented by John Davis, area extension horticulturist.

Landscaping with native plants will be presented during the afternoon session by Randy

Smith, county agent. Soil preparation, planting techniques, propagation and maintenance of wildflowers and other native plants will be included.

Clients having a problem with their lawns, shrubs or trees may want to bring a specimen of the affected plant to be identified.

This program is free and open to any interested individuals. To register, call 467-5456.

pruning these plants, the next year's flower display will be greatly reduced since the flowers are borne on the last season's growth.

Many plants that flower during the summer, like althea and crape myrtle, should be pruned during the late winter or early spring.

However, do not prune these similar plants too early in the winter since warm spells during the winter could promote new and succulent growth that might be predisposed to later cold injury.

Some plants can be pruned during the summer to Aug. 15, if necessary. Pruning during this time will require proper watering and fertilization (be sure to follow the proper fertilization time).

Never prune from September through December since new and succulent growth could be produced and result in serious cold injury.

There are several types of pruning and they include shearing, tip pruning, espalier, topiary, limb removal and others. Each of these requires special pruning techniques and equipment.

Your trained local nursery often carry a wide selection of quality pruning equipment and can assist you not only in selecting the proper equipment but also with special pruning measures.

By the way, when pruning watch out for falling limbs and branches, beware of thorns and spines and wasps. Also, for difficult or dangerous pruning jobs, please contact a licensed, bonded and professional tree surgeon. Remember, a homeowner should never leave the ground to prune.

Until next week, this is Randy Smith saying, "There ain't nothing to do but to do it. So don't let pruning become a mentally agonizing task. Call you local County Extension Office at 467-5456 for a copy of "Pruning Landscaping Shrubs."

Garden Tips

- There is still some time left to plant container-grown fruit trees. See your trained nurseryman for varieties suited for your area and also contact your local County Extension office for a copy of "Fruit & Nut Recommendations for Mississippi."

- However, do not plant bare-root plants after bud break since the survival rate will be limited. Remember, many fruit trees can provide added bloom to the landscape.

- To control winter weeds in the turfgrass area, mow them at the recommended mowing height for the specific turfgrass. Most winter, annual weeds cannot tolerate mowing. Be sure to do so before they produce a seed head.

- Now is a good time to get ahead start on bed preparation for summer annuals by incorporating plenty of organic matter and clean, sharp sand (not river sand) into heavy clay soils. Only add organic matter to sandy soils.

- I would reduce soil disturbance on sloped areas until just prior to planting to prevent soil erosion.

- Avoid disturbing early-summer, flowering perennials at present; but now is the best time to move or divide fall blooming perennials such as asters, garden mums and others.

- Do not divide perennials that are in bloom, if at all possible.

- Remember, many container-grown trees and shrubs can be successfully planted now. However, do not fertilize newly transplanted trees and shrubs for at least four weeks after planting.

- Summer-flowering bulbs can be planted after the danger of spring frost.

- Do not dethatch your turfgrass from March 1 through June 1.
- If planning to establish a new lawn, it is still time to take soil samples and have an analysis run at the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service's Soil Testing Laboratory for $3 per sample prior to planting.
